As of October 2019, all published items in the Diamond Open Access journal Nordicum-Mediterraneum are to be attributed a DOI number or code ("Digital Object Identifier"). Operated by Iceland's National/University Library in Reykjavik, the attribution is to begin with issue 14(2)/2019 (cf. list below), and then extend to the older volumes, proceeding backwards in time (i.e., 13, 12, 11, etc.), plus all the new issues of the e-journal to come.

The process will take many months and, as long as the journal releases new issues, ongoing as well. Authors are notified the exact DOI numbers of their contribution(s) as soon as the numbers themselves are communicated to the journal's editor. In addition, the same numbers are, and will be, published on the journal's website (as per the list below, which is going to be updated regularly). The authors can then circulate the DOI codes on scholarly archives and scientific platforms such as Academia, ResearchGate, IRIS, etc.

All the items published in the journal issues comprised between 1(1)/2006 and 9(2)/2014 were also assigned permanent electronic handles by the Library of the University of Akureyri, as still visible and accessible on Skemman.is. This electronic handle facilitated online retrieval and ensured permanent storage, but was eventually considered outdated and no longer offered to our journal. Still, it will not disappear because of DOI attributions.
